Q. India is a union or a federal.

Ans. Constitutional India is a union government i.e. the powers are vested in central government and state government is ^{merely} administrative unit ~~is~~ only.

~~But~~ Practically, India is a federal government as there is distribution of power between central and state government.

But during emergency, India becomes unitary state of government and it is the central government which becomes powerful and takes all decision.

Hence, we can say that India is neither a union nor a federal government but a quasi federal.
